Artist Statement

I would describe my work as mixed-media sculpture centered around the female form—specifically my own. Each piece grows out of a feeling, memory, thought, or moment, becoming a physical extension of experiences I can't express any other way. I work with textures and unconventional materials to challenge weight, balance, and perception, creating a sense of constructed illusion that blurs what feels solid and what feels imagined.

My process is intuitive and tactile, driven by curiosity and the need to transform internal experiences into something dimensional. I aim to create sculptures that hold presence, invite emotional response, and leave room for each viewer to meet the work on their own terms.
